Report on the Celebration of World Autism Day

On April 2, 2025, Ganpati Educational Society marked World Autism Day with a special event themed "Empowering Neurodiverse Communities." The celebration was deliberately timed to coincide with the announcement of the annual results, aiming to boost awareness about autism, foster greater social inclusion, build a society more accommodating to individuals with autism, and highlight the significance of early diagnosis. Mr. R.S. Pal, a respected retired gazetted officer, graced the occasion as the Chief Guest. The program kicked off with a warm welcome, as special children, along with parents and staff, presented garlands to the guests. Dr. Roshan Lal Sharma, the Society's Director, delivered an inspiring speech on the importance of social inclusion, while counselor Ms. Damini Thakur provided insightful technical information about autism. The event reached its culmination with the distribution of prizes and an enthralling performance put up by the special children

Special Children of GES Shine at Alankar Utsav Exhibition

At the prestigious Alankar Utsav, Ganpati Educational Society proudly displayed an impressive exhibition featuring handcrafted items meticulously created by their specially-abled children. The exhibition showcased remarkable creativity and exceptional craftsmanship, earning the organization a well-deserved Second Prize in the competitive event. This achievement represents the culmination of countless hours of dedicated work, patient guidance, and unwavering determination.

The recognition brings immense joy to the entire GES community. We extend our heartfelt congratulations to all our differently-abled children whose artistic vision and persistent efforts made this success possible.

Equal appreciation goes to their supportive parents and guardians who consistently encourage these young talents to explore their creative potential despite challenges.

This accomplishment not only celebrates the children's artistic abilities but also highlights their valuable contribution to society through meaningful expression.
